

BEDZINE

July 10, 2009

An alternative towards the usual doorbells is an intercom system, much of which are limited to modern houses with a budget. And for the people contemplating on providing an improved and better way of providing security and entertaining guests, here is a great way to kick things off right when they step up to your home door.

“It made both aesthetic and economic sense to develop a special product solution that combines our Virtual Doorman system with Aiphone’s intercom systems,” said Colin Foster, vice president of sales and marketing for Virtual Doorman. “This enables Virtual Service and our Authorized Dealer Networks to promote, sell and install a streamlined solution with this special custom module.”

Since we are in the modern age, this is something that will surely enhance the modern homes. Tighten up your security and welcome guests in style without much effort with the Virtual Doorman